Important:

Please note that costs detailed above are for indicative purposes and correct at the time of printing based on the previous year costs. Costs are dependent on the options chosen by students and are susceptible to changes in the number of students taking field courses and changes in external factors such as flight and accommodation costs outside the University's control.

In order to help students manage their field course costs, the payments are spread over the course of the academic year, normally October, February and May, with some payments for overseas field courses spread further into the next financial year. The first instalment is non-refundable due to the need to pre-book accommodation, flights etc. in advance.

Where a student misses a field course, changes their degree course, changes decision or cancels at late notice, for no valid reason (e.g. due to agreed exceptional circumstances) and where the School/University has already incurred a cost, the student will be responsible for paying the field course cost and if the reassessment requires the field course to be repeated.
