(?) 4 Dec.
1670

Letter, Mary Helsby to [her father] Piers Halton, at 'Quistie' [recte Quisty or Quisty-Birches], in Hatton.

Having so good a hand she could not but present her and her husband's humble duty. Her husband had been very industrious to get a fit match for her brother Thomas, 'but heither two his indeavours have not been sucksessfull'. Thought they ought 'to eye the hand of god in it & see the reason why he seems to frowne on our family'. Most of their acquaintances were called 'fanaticks', nevertheless her husband would do what he could, but she thought it best for him to contract his debts as much as may be, that her husband might not be tied 'either to get such a portion or no wife'. As for the deed he made her, presumes he knew the time was almost out for the payment, and humbly desired to know his intention.

4. [Saffron] Walden.
3 Aug.
1390
- Devise, by indenture bipartite. Ann, wife of John Sutton of [Saffron] Walden, gives and grants to John Sutton aforesaid, her husband, after her death, her manor of 'Westle' [recte Westley], (Cambridgeshire), with appurtenances, and to the heirs of his body lawfully begotten. 'And if the said John or his heirs should depart from this world, I will that the same manor may be sold and [the proceeds] distributed for my soul and the souls of my parents in pious uses, that is, among the priests, to celebrate for us, and in repairing the roads and the parish church of Walden. Also, I give and grant to the aforesaid John Sutton, my husband, all that messuage with appurtenances which was formerly William Lynn's, his heirs and assigns, on condition that he should pay my executors £40 of good and lawful money, and that the aforesaid money be spent in pious uses, that is, among the priests and in repairing the parish church of Walden, by the hands of my attornies, as is written above. Also, I give and grant to Ann my daughter, a nun of 'Ikelington' [recte Ickleton], (Cambridgeshire), a messuage next to the messuage of John Sadeler, and abutting on to the king's highway, which highway leads to the parish church of Walden, to have and to hold the same messuage, with appurtenances, for the term of her life. After the death of that woman [illius mulieris], I will that the said messuage may revert to the church of Walden. Also, I give and grant to Oliver, and Katherine his wife, my shop lying near John Herd. Also, I bequeath to Margery Gardener my niece, that shop which lies between John Godfrey and my aforesaid shop, and both aforesaid shops abutt onto the king's highway near the manor of the Countess of Her[e]ford. To have and to hold the aforesaid shops to the aforesaid Oliver and Katherine his wife, their heirs and assigns. Also, the other aforesaid shop, to the aforesaid Margerie, my niece, her heirs and assigns, quietly, for ever. Also, I give a little shop which lies next to the shops of John Heynes and abutts onto the king's highway which leads towards Cambridge, next to the little spring, to Agnes Lauender, for term of life. After the death of that woman, I will that it may be given to John Bris, for all his life. After the death of the said John, I will that it may be given to a poor man [uno pauperi], to pray for my soul and for the souls of my benefactors, at the choice of my attornies. And I, the aforesaid Ann, and my heirs, will warrant the aforesaid gifts against all men for ever. For the carrying out of which, I appoint and ordain Dom John Stokton, Simon Adam, John Sutton, John Howlot senior, and John Schampeneys my faithful attornies'.

2. Westminster.
1 Mar.
1367

Inspeximus, by letters patent, reciting proceedings in a case of fraud, on the issue of the estate of William, son of William de Septvans, chevalier, deceased, a minor, including details of a commission issued at 'Russhyndon' [recte Rushenden, Isle of Sheppey], 13 April, 1366, to John de Cobeham de Kent, Thomas de Lodelowe, and William Waure, to inquire into the insufficiency of the proof of age of the said William, son of William de Septvans, chevalier, deceased, before the escheator of Kent; and details of the findings of the commission, held at Canterbury, 21 April, 1366, viz: that the said William, son of William de Septvans, chevalier, deceased, would be 20 years old on 28 August next, that the same William had the moiety of the manor of Aldington, in Kent, worth £10 a year, certain marshes called 'Lokelyng' and 'Hersyng', in Iwade, Kent, worth 40/- a year, and in the same moiety a wood, worth £100 to sell, which the same William occupied from the time when the king removed his hand therefrom, to Christmas 1364, 'when the same William son of William enfeoffed a certain John Gower of these tenements, to hold to him and his heirs for ever, for which certain moiety, wood and marshes he gave 40 marks and no more, by virtue of which enfeoffment the same John Gower occupied the same tenement from the said Feast of the Nativity of the Lord to now and still occupies and continually receives the revenues and profits'. The same commission relating that William de Chircheshull, who instigated the fraudulent proof of age, also sued out of the king's hands the manor of Milton, in Kent, worth £20 a year, and a messuage in Canterbury, worth 20/- a year, and a £10 rent in Littlebourne and Well; and that the same William had the manor of 'Promhull' [recte Bromhill], in Kent, from the gift of Richard de Alesle, rector of Harrietsham, worth £35 a year, which same manor was charged to John Septvans with a rent of £10 a year for life and was held of the Archbishop of Canterbury, and which the same William alienated to Walter de Multon and Richard de Sugworth, chaplains, and Richard Maufe, to the use of Sir Nicholas de Loveyne. The same commission relating that 'after the feoffment to the aforesaid John Gower, the said William, son of William, was continuously abiding in the company of Richard Hurst and of the same John Gower, at Canterbury and elsewhere, until the feast of St Michael last past, and all the time the same William, son of William, was there led away by them, and counselled to alienate his lands, etc.

(List of records)

Accession No. or Date

Name and Address University of Leeds, Leeds, Yorkshire of Leeds

Donation or Collection from the University of Leeds, Leeds, Yorkshire
(The University of Leeds, Leeds, Yorkshire)

Notes

Most of the records listed here, forming part of an artificial collection, are muniments of title of one sort or another. For this reason and for the sake of simplicity the provenance of those records which are not muniments of title has been ignored: a licence confiscated from an Alkham alehousekeeper by the Court of Quarter Sessions will be found under Alkham, and not separately under a classified heading.
